PUBLISHERS' NOTE.

As Mr. Adams intimates in his biographical sketch of Mr. Tuttle, the present volume in continuation of his History of Prussia was left by the author in MS., ready for the printer. It was considered more expedient to publish this portion, even though it does not complete the plan he laid out for himself, since his plan called for publication by sections. To attempt to complete the series from Mr. Tuttle's notes would be to make the remainder of the work, after all, a history by another hand. The only editorial work required, therefore, to supplement the author's very careful preparation of his MS., was the scrutiny of the proofs as the pages passed through the press, to bring the book in all particulars into line with the previous volumes, and the provision of an index.

Boston, 26 February, 1866.
