PREFACE

THIS book has been prepared to meet a pressing need expressed by those who recognize the importance of the Workers' Conference. All who have the interests of the church school at heart know that a Workers' Conference is an imperative necessity to successful work. "How to Make It Go" is the problem. The plans herein suggested have been tested out in the laboratory of experience. They are given in simple form and are adaptable to any school. Their wise and prayerful use will, we believe, not only give direction to the work, but will develop team-work spirit among the workers, and quicken them to spend themselves and be spent in His service.

PREFACE

The workers in the church school are God's chosen ones. The influence of their faithfulness, their devotion, their never-tiring effort, their constant endeavor to know the best and to do the best they know is one of the great leavening forces of the world. This little book of practical suggestions is sent forth with a prayer that it may give needed help to these consecrated workers and have some share in making them more efficient in their task of bringing the kingdom on earth.
