Entered, according to the Act of Congress, in the year 1880, by STEPHEN C. MASSETT,

In the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

MR. STEPHEN C. MASSETT:

My Dear Stephen:

I dedicate to you this little volume. The sketch it contains was written some fourteen years ago, when you were a clerk in my office, and I did not suppose it would ever be presented in a more durable form. But as you retained a copy, took it with you on your various pilgrimages, and during the Christmas season read it to strangers even at the Antipodes, it seems to be yours more than mine, and I thus bestow it upon you. Mr. EDWARD S. HALL has made the book valuable by the admirable illustrations with which he has adorned it, and there may be some who will possibly derive gratification from having this frail memorial of him who, with affection and esteem, subscribes himself

YOURS EVER,

JAMES T. BRADY.

A Christmas Dream.

CHAPTER I.

“NOT one cent.”

“But please, sir, we haven't any bread at home.”

“Not one cent, I say—begone!”

Yet it was Christmas Eve, and this sullen denial proceeded from one well provided with
