PREFACE.

Some ten years ago, while in pursuit of genealogical material, finding the various church and city records incomplete, it became necessary for me to extend my search to the older cemeteries of my native city. It seemed a pity to leave so much information, nowhere else obtainable, to be spoiled and lost by the vandals—time and man. Accordingly, it was copied and is at this time presented to those interested, whether stranger or descendant of those proud or humble persons who have slept so long among us, yet so far apart from our present scenes and activities. This pamphlet is supplementary to material already published in the New England Register, but embraces much which is missing in them, covering as it does a broader field, yet taken with records mentioned below it gives us all the vital statistics we may obtain of the early settlers of Portsmouth. In this connection the reader is referred to the following sources of information:

Portsmouth city records; Saint John's Church records; South Parish Church records; Congregational Church records; Newcastle town records; New England Historical Genealogical Register, Vols. IX, X, XXIII, XXIV, XXV, XXVI, XXVII.

The modern large cemeteries, as at the third bridge, Newcastle, the South and Catholic cemeteries in Portsmouth, are not included.

An initial letter before each name is used as an abbreviation for the following cemeteries and shows where each person is buried. This is given that lost graves may be located and places visited which need the critical eye and material pocketbook. Portsmouth is always understood except where Newcastle is given:
