PREFACE.

---

THE "Harvard Advocate" was first published ten years ago. The following verses, selected from its twenty volumes, are not offered to the public on account of any excellence they may exhibit, or of any promise they may give, but because of such interest as they may have as a reflection of the thought and sentiment of the College, partly under the conditions which exist to-day and partly under those which are now rapidly disappearing. Their authors at the time of writing were, with one exception, we believe, either undergraduates or graduates whose separation from college had been so recent as not yet to break the ties they had formed as contributors to the "Advocate."

HARVARD COLLEGE, May, 1876.
