In Memoriam
Charles Benjamin Dudley

Obit December 21, 1908

By Harvey M. Wiley

W ell have you done the labors of a life,
Of service for your country and for God,
Whether the paths of flaming fields you trod
In battle for the Nation rent with strife
Where cannon's thunder smothered drum and fife,
Or following the plow across the sod,
Or tarrying where sons of science plod—
A fount of cheer for comrade, friend and wife,
The ripple of your laugh, the clear sweet light
Of those dear eyes forever closed to earth
Shall glad and guide me as I near the night
Now closing on my day of deeds and mirth,
Its glowing glory waxing ever bright
In th' unfathom'd shadows of the second birth.
